Ego States

Child Ego State
Every child has a tendency to get stuck in reacting. For example, we may think that we are reacting to a situation, but in reality, we are reacting to the way that we are reacting. The way that we react is often a result of our own internal state, not the external situation. Shamans use the powers of their inner vision and imagination to journey for knowledge and for vital information. They have learned to recognize that these clues and symbols are important, and they believe that they are worth listening to. They learn how to suspend judgment and trust their inner guidance.

13

They learn to work with natural images and symbols from within and know how to interpret these to overcome obstacles and problems. True artists, they often bring their symbolism forth into ritualistic song, dance, movement, and rhythms.

14

Shamans learn how to understand people and how to work with them in a healing fashion. They have excellent insight into people's character structures. Shamans know how to laugh and have learned to be detached enough from the drama of life to find the human condition amusing.

15

They learn to communicate both externally and internally at the same time. They truly have a foot in both worlds at once and lose track of neither. They alter their views about linear time and suspend beliefs in the limitations of the human mind.

16

Shamans learn how to be successful and they certainly know how to take action when called for. Shamans are not armchair philosophers. They have practical skills for handling dilemmas. They have become comfortable with paradox.

17

They know how to shift levels of consciousness at will. They are as comfortable with ecstatic states as with ordinary waking consciousness. This gives them a flexible nature, able to handle change easily.

Earth Primary Power

From the time you are born your earthly body container grows and develops until you become strong enough to fully stand on your own in life as a fully individuated being.

It is only through the power of your individual "body container" that you receive the gift of creating on your own. Expressing the unique way Spirit moves through you into form. As you grow your job is to learn to stand on your "own two feet" in the world.

ACTIVATE EARTH'S PRIMARY POWER AS A PRIESTESS

Earth is literally the ground you stand on.

You are learning to stand your ground...standing on your own as an individuated spark of Spirit creating in the world of form.

Dance to activate Earth's Primary Power to Stand on Your Own as a Priestess.

Connect to your legs after the dance and see if they have anything to tell you about standing on your own in life.
